Academic Policies

The Krieger School of Arts and Sciences and the Whiting School of Engineering offer myriad opportunities for intellectual exploration, academic challenge, and personal growth. To satisfy your academic goals and assure your progress toward graduation, take action and responsibility for the following:

• Seek advice from multiple faculty and other university professionals.

• Meet with your assigned advisor at least once a semester.

• Learn the information contained within this online catalog. Failure to do so does not excuse you from responsibility for the rules and procedures.

• Track your completion of your degree requirements.

• Consult your advising office and your major department about any questions concerning academic policy.

Personal difficulties, illness, or advice contradicting the rules and procedures do not constitute automatic grounds for exemption from these rules or procedures. Waivers or exceptions to these rules and procedures must be reviewed and approved in advance and are effective only when endorsed by your advising office. The University reserves the right to change rules, procedures and other information within this website as appropriate. This website is not to be regarded as a contract. If you have questions, contact your school’s advising office.
